What Could Have Been

```
A
Tell me what you see when you look through your eyes
D                               A   D
Tell me is it the same thing that I see

A                                   D
I wonder what the world would have turned out to be if
A             D                 A  D
certain things had happened differently

A                       D
What could have been I question when I'm
A                   D
alone even though the past it rests behind us

A           D
I just go on in silence but I
A               D
still have words to say and in my
A               D               A       D
mind I think the past must be to blame

A           D                   A   D
In Silence but I Still have words to say

        A           D               A               D
Did I live up to my potential, what if I followed all my dreams
                    A                           D
How would life have changed if I had taken that left turn

What could have been I wonder
In the silence of the night
What could have been I ponder
Or is everything just right

Is it just my imagination
Or are the past and future real
The only thing I finally know
Is to be present without fear

What still might be
My mind now thinks
So what could have been
I say to you
It's all going to be alright
